CITATIONS TO THE OPINIONS BELOW

Pursuant to 5TH CIR. R. 47.5, the court determined that this opinion should not be published and is not precedent except under the limited circumstances set forth in the 5TH Circuit. R. 47.5.4. The district court opinion is also not published.

STATEMENT OF JURISDICTION

The decision of the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit was entered on June 4, 2008. The time to file this petition for a writ of certiorari is on or before September 2, 2008. On August 19, 2008, Petitioner filed an application for extension of time within which to file a writ for certiorari. Justice Scalia on August 28, 2008, denied the application. The jurisdiction of this Court is invoked under 28 U.S.C. § 1254(1).

STATEMENT OF THE CASE[1]

This is a civil rights case against employment discrimination in violation of Title VII (42 U.S.C.2000e-5), Section 1985(3) Conspiracy, Section 1983 carrying the Fourteenth Amendment and the First Amendments, and various State law violations.

The case is against Harris County ("COUNTY"), Texas, and three officials of its Public Health Department, known as Harris County Public Health and Environmental Services("HCPHES"): Executive Director Herminia Palacio ("PALACIO"), Deputy Director Umair Shah ("SHAH") and Human Resource Manager Charles Cunningham ("CUNNINGHAM") in their personal capacities. [USCA5, 15-41].

The County together with Palacio, Shah and Cunningham are the Defendants-Respondents, collectively referred to as "Respondents."

In May 2005, Petitioner, a U. S. Citizen of Asian-Indian origin, applied for the job of Area

Manager at one of the HCPHES' Public Health Clinics in Humble, Texas.

Petitioner had an outstanding background in health care management. He had double Master's degrees in related fields, and several years of operational and consulting experience at the executive level.

Petitioner's immediate supervisor, Binh Nguyen (NGUYEN), then Chief of Health care Services, was impressed by Petitioner's background and invited him for a second interview.

Though Nguyen was very supportive of Petitioner's candidacy, both Cunningham and Shah were hostile to him during this interview. They asked unrelated and harassing questions and made extensive notes (destroyed after the commencement of this action in violation of the State's criminal law). Palacio was not involved at this stage.

During the discovery of this case it was revealed that at the selection stage, Cunningham was pushing for a White candidate by the name of Chrisly Dillon who did not even meet the minimum background for the job [*Id.*1242 and 1244].

Ultimately, however, Nguyen prevailed as he insisted for Petitioner selection based on merit vis-à-vis Dillon whose background was severely deficient for the job. This tension is well recorded [Id. 1244].

Though Shah was of the same national origin and race as Petitioner, he was so racially insecure that he went along with Cunningham to appease him so that he could strengthen his own position in the County's racist atmosphere. A review of Shah's conduct in the present saga corroborates this perspective [Id. 869-946].

Petitioner's references checked out to be excellent [Id. 1688] and he joined the position on June 28, 2005.

Development of a False Paper Trail

Cunningham, however, never forgave Petitioner for having secured the job against his recommendation. As follows, Cunningham kept instigating conspiracies against Petitioner to settle his scores [Id. 900-906]:

First, Cunningham asked one of his subordinates, Jan Allison, to write a complaint against Petitioner which he quietly kept in Petitioner's personal file without confronting Petitioner with it. Allison in her complaint indicates that she was writing the complaint on Cunningham's behest. The crux of Allison's complaint was that in a meeting, Petitioner "grilled" her by asking too many questions [Id. 901-902].

Later, Cunningham asked another employee, Colleen Hodges, to write a complaint against Petitioner. This complaint was also quietly kept in Petitioner personal file without giving Petitioner any opportunity to rebut. Hodges also indicates that she was writing the complaint on Cunningham's demand. The crux of Hodges' complaint was that she wanted to use the Clinic parking lot to spay and neuter community dogs but Petitioner [unreasonably] insisted that he would not approve the request unless he got it in writing [Id. 903-904].

Lastly, when Petitioner tried to question Stephani Adams, one of his subordinates, for missing work 2-3 days a week and not completing her monthly reports because she was spending time with Shah during work hours, Cunningham instigated Adams to write a grievance against Petitioner. [Id. 902].

Cunningham's conspiracy was so well-founded that in an e-mail he wrote to Shah that he wished the dispute between Petitioner and his subordinate would not resolve which would give him an "opportunity" to take care of the Petitioner. This is exactly what Cunningham and Shah did. They terminated Petitioner a day before his answer to Adams' Grievance was due. Understandably, they did not want Petitioner to be able to rebut Adams' Grievance.

Ironically, Adams' grievance was cited by the County as one of the reasons for Petitioner's termination. Petitioner was denied pre-termination and post-termination hearing to clear his name against a defamatory letter of termination that has ruined his career since it has been available to the public under the Texas Open Government Act.

Needless to mention, Petitioner's position was filled by a White person.

The "complaints" that Cunningham and Shah secretly got the employees to write against Petitioner became County's pretext to terminate him. Interestingly, none of these Complaints were under affidavit and some were anonymous allegations by third parties.

Other complaints were hearsay over hearsay. Yet the district court admitted this as evidence and granted County's Motion for Summary Judgment on that basis alone.

The district court also ignored the affidavit filed by the Clinic staff in favor of Petitioner.

An intertwined factor is the reforms Petitioner made immediately after taking over the clinic job. Petitioner had discovered several gross mismanagement issues in the operation of the clinic including many lapses on the clinical side seriously affecting patient care.

Any reasonable person would agree that such issues warranted immediate attention.

Petitioner's attempted reforms became another point of conflict since the money allocated to these items was being squandered by the top leadership of HCPHES. Shah was admittedly embarrassed since him and Petitioner were identified being of the same race and national origin and this was another reason for Shah to get rid of Petitioner. Thus the motivating factor in the unlawful termination was still Petitioner's race.

Petitioner strongly believes he did the right things in each instance and would act exactly the same way if he had to do the things all over again. This is validated from the fact that Petitioner did not receive a single warning from his immediate supervisor Nguyen who was supportive of him throughout and who himself took an early retirement at age 63 due to the County's increasingly racist atmosphere.

Petitioner's case was as straightforward as it could be. Petitioner (1) was never reprimanded before his abrupt termination; (2) was terminated a day before his response to the grievance against him was due; (3) was denied pre-termination and post-termination hearing by the County; (4) had passed the McDonnell Douglas test[2] which is the gold-standard in employment discrimination cases.

2 McDonnell Douglas Corp. v. Green, 411 U.S. 792 (1973).

Judicial Misconduct to Suppress Defense's Crimes

With no defense at hand, the County resorted to unlawful conduct which has become County's modus operandi.

As a first step, the case was removed from a neutral trial judge and reassigned to the Honorable Gray H. Miller [Id. 46] who was a close friend of then Chief County Commissioner (who also happened to be the County Judge).

Soon after the reassignment of the case, Assistant County Attorney, Nick Turner, the defense counsel in the case, was caught in ex-parte communications with Judge Miller [Id. 165-166]. When Petitioner raised serious objections on the ex parte communications, Turner forged postal receipts of certified mail in order to prove that Petitioner was sent copies of the ex parte communications [*Id.*163].

Petitioner caught the forgery and reported it to the district court in the form of letters and a Motion to Disqualify the Defense Counsel for Misconduct [*Id.*205-246]. The Motion was denied as irrelevant [Id. 377].

Emboldened by the court's support, Turner committed additional crimes. First, he caused the destruction of incriminating evidence. Under Texas law, pre-mature destruction of documents owned by a local government is a crime.

When the Petitioner filed his Motion to Compel Disclosure on the Destruction of Documents, for mysterious reasons, it was never docketed though Petitioner had a receipt of its submission.[3] [Id. 888-889].

As expected, Petitioner's Second Motion to Compel Disclosure on the Destruction of Documents [Id. 838] was denied by the court [Id. 868].

Next, Tuner induced Cunningham and Palacio to file false affidavits. When Petitioner discovered the perjury, he filed a Motion for Sanctions Against Perjury [Id. 1749] which was denied [*Id.*1815].

The record in this case is so comprehensive, and each event so well recorded, that there are not many disputes over the occurrence of the incidents or Petitioner's explanation thereof.

The bases of the trial court's final ruling are flawed and are obviously an egregious abuse of discretion. The Recommendation and Memorandum of Magistrate Nancy K. Johnson [Id. 1760-1792] was duly adopted by the district court [Id. 1817-1818] [App. B] without any consideration of the 28 Objections that the [3] In his complaint on judicial misconduct against Magistrate Nancy K. Johnson, Petitioner provided evidence of Magistrate Johnson's role in the unlawful prevention of the docketing of his motion. However, the Court of Appeals exempted Magistrate Johnson from replying to the Complaint under oath. Consequently, Magistrate's explanation was inconsistent with the documented facts.

Petitioner filed under Rule 72 (b) of the Fed. Rules of Civ. Proc. [Id. 1793-1814].

The linchpin of the entire ruling is the pretextual paper trail, against the Petitioner, secretly developed by the Respondents. Petitioner's challenge to that paper trail is nowhere mentioned in the ruling. Nor is the affidavit by a non-interested party, contradicting Respondents' fabricated allegations, considered by the trial court.

Petitioner filed his timely Objections and pointed out over 28 discrepancies in the Recommendation [Id. 179]. Petitioner's Amended Objections [Id. 1812] also pointed out some errors of the district court.

In conclusion, the district court, after allowing the Respondents a series of criminal conduct, during the proceedings of the case that prejudiced this Petitioner's interest, also took away Petitioner's right to have the jury examine the fraudulent evidence against him. To add to it, the court also suppressed the testimony favorable to the Petitioner.

Errors of the Appellate Court

The appellate panel, angry at the Petitioner for exposing the misconduct of the district court, also decided to ignore a plethora of evidence favoring the Petitioner and affirmed the district court's ruling without any discussion on the fact that: (a) Petitioner's claim had passed the McDonnell Douglas

Test; (b) a jury undoubtedly would have found the pretextual paper-trail against the Petitioner to be bogus; (c) the proceedings of the trial court were heavily tainted; (d) the district judge never addressed Petitioner's 28 Objections to the Magistrate's Memorandum and Recommendation.

In the Appellant's Brief, Petitioner had posed the following three questions for the appellate panel's review :

ISSUE I

Whether the court abused its discretion in denying summary judgment for the appellant.

ISSUE II

Whether the court abused its discretion in granting summary judgment for the appellees.

ISSUE III

Whether the court constructively denied the appellant judicial remedy and equal protection or, in the alternative, abused discretion by not punishing appellees against their criminal conduct.

The appellate panel chose not to answer any of the questions. In fact, it could not have addressed Issue III without exposing the extreme judicial misconduct of the district court which covered up a series of crimes of the defense counsel.

ARGUMENT

Based on stare decisis, the record in this case is overwhelmingly supports the fact that Petitioner was discriminated against on the basis of his race.

Part I of the four-prong McDonnell Douglas Test squarely fits on the Petitioner's claim. As demonstrated in his Motion for Summary Judgment [Id. 869], Petitioner (a) belonged to a protected class (uncontroverted); (b) was qualified for the position (uncontroverted); (c) was terminated from the position (uncontroverted), and (d) was replaced by a Caucasian (uncontroverted) [Id. 892-893].

Part II of the Test was also in Petitioner's favor. That is, County's pretext in terminating Petitioner was altogether bogus since the Petitioner was never confronted with the "complaints" against him which were secretly generated and filed [Id. 900-906]. Once the defense realized it was left with no argument in support of its unlawful conduct, it resorted to illegal means to win the case in connivance with the district court.

REPEATED EPISODES OF GROSS JUDICIAL MISCONDUCT DENIED THE PETITIONER A MEANINGFUL ACCESS TO COURT .

A trial court is duty-bound to discipline a counsel of record who perpetrated crimes related to the proceeding of the case. "In our system of justice the opportunity to be heard is a litigant's most precious right and should be sparingly denied.'" Chrysler Corp. v. Carey, 186 F.3d 1016, 1020 (8th Cir. 1999) (quoting Edgar v. Slaughter, 548 F.2d 770, 773 (8th Cir. 1977).

When a litigant's conduct abuses the judicial process, dismissal of a lawsuit is a remedy within the inherent power of the court. Pope v. Federal Express Corp., 974 F.2d 982, 984 (8th Cir. 1992).

Unfortunately, in this case the court itself was involved in the abuse of the judicial process. Not only the Respondents were not punished for their criminal conduct openly perpetrated on the proceedings, the court admitted false affidavits as evidence and, at the same time, altogether suppressed affidavits favoring Petitioner's position.

APPELLATE COURT DEVIATED FROM STANDARD OF REVIEW TO COVER UP THE MISCONDUCT OF THE DISTRICT COURT, THEREBY, DENYING PETITIONER'S STATUTORY RIGHT TO APPEAL UNDER 28 U.S.C. SECTION 1291.

The Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals reviews district court's grant of summary judgment de novo, applying the same standards as would the district court. Pratt v Houston, 247 F.3d 601,605-06 (5th Cir.2001). In this case, however, the Fifth Circuit deviated from this rule to cover-up the gross misconduct of the district court.

In Reeves v. Sanderson Plumbing Prods, Inc., 530 U.S. 133 (2000),the Supreme Court unanimously held that a plaintiff's prima facie case, combined with evidence sufficient to rebut employer's non-discriminatory explanation for discharge, often meets plaintiff's burden of persuasion. This is what the appellate court would have found in this case had it not deviated from its standard of review.

The appellate court also disregarded Supreme Court's ruling in Reeves 120 S. Ct. at 2110 which required that in determining the sufficiency of evidence, a court must credit the employee's evidence, and consider only the evidence from the movant that has not been contradicted or impeached, and which is provided by disinterested witnesses. See also, Tart v. Illinois Power Co., 366 F.3d 461 (7th Cir 2004).

CONSIDERATION FOR REVIEW OF CERTIORARI

Of all the petitions for writ of certiorari pending before the Court at the present time, this is one of the most compelling petitions since it provides details on the gross misconduct of the federal district court duly covered up by the appellate panel as is reflected in its review of this case.

Justice Antonin Scalia, who supervises the Fifth Circuit, must note the appellate court's active protection of the bad behavior of the district courts, under it, so much so that the Fifth Circuit has become a laughing stock in public and at various bar association in the South of its loose control. This has resulted in the promotion of a toxic and obnoxious culture implicating two federal judges who are under criminal investigation.[4]

This Petition must also be specially reviewed by Justice Steven Breyer who chaired the committee on the rules of judicial misconduct

[4] Harris County, the third largest in the nation, where the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Texas is located and where the events referenced in this Petition took place, has become a poster child for criminal networking among government officials.

In less than a year, a significant number of officials in Harris County have been exposed by the media and the public. Federal Judge Sam Kent was charged with sexually assaulting his case manager in a drunken state in his chambers during lunch hours; County District Attorney Chuck Rosenthal resigned against charges of obstruction of justice, two County Commissioners Jerry Eversole and Frank Lee are under investigation for bribery and embezzlement. Justice David Medina, of the State Supreme Court, and his wife were indicted by a grand jury against arson to their house to collect insurance.

The officials involved in the criminal conduct in present case, Nick Turner, Esq. and County Attorney Mike Stafford are still working in their positions. So are Charles Cunningham and Herminia Palacio who supplied false affidavits which the district court accepted without any inquiry and despite Petitioner's protest.

to note the blatant violation of those rules by the Fifth Circuit.

Finally, the Petition must also be particularly considered by Chief Justice John Roberts who in his 2007 Year-end Report states: "When entertaining a complaint about a judge, the Judiciary must apply the same qualities of reason, impartiality, and wisdom that epitomize the judicial process. The Judiciary cannot tolerate misconduct. The public rightly expects the Judiciary to be fair but firm in policing its own."

CONCLUSION

Petitioner respectfully submits to this Court that based on the reason that Petitioner's meritorious claim was not properly adjudicated due to the misconduct of the district court, and the appellate court denied Petitioner's statutory right to an appeal on the relevant issue, this Petition for a Writ of Certiorari must be granted.

Respectfully submitted,

Ali Waris

Appeal from the United States District Court for the Southern District of Texas, Houston
USDC No. 4:06-CV-1331

Before STEWART, OWEN, and SOUTHWICK, Circuit Judges.

PER CURIAM:[1]

Ali Waris's employment was terminated seven weeks after he was hired as a clinic manager for Harris County. The decision to terminate Waris's employment was based on numerous complaints about his attitude, verbal attacks, and unprofessional conduct after previous reprimands, including sending an improper email to his subordinates and supervisors about a member of the United States Congress who sponsored a public immunization event through the clinic.

Waris, acting pro se, filed suit alleging discrimination based on race and national origin and violation of constitutional rights. The district court adopted the findings and recommendation of a magistrate judge and granted summary judgment for the Defendants.

We agree with the district court that Waris failed to demonstrate a prima facie case of race or national origin discrimination in that no evidence of disparate treatment was advanced. Waris also failed to adequately state any claim

ORDER ADOPTING MAGISTRATE JUDGE'S MEMORANDUM AND RECOMMENDATION

Pending before the court are the Plaintiff's Objections, and Amended Objections to the Magistrate Judge's Memorandum and Recommendation. Dkts. 93 & 94. Having reviewed the Memorandum and Recommendation dated November 27, 2007, and the Plaintiff's Objections and Amended Objections, the court ADOPTS the Magistrate Judge's Memorandum and Recommendation. Dkt. 92.

In his objections, Plaintiff argues that the court cannot rule on the Motions for Summary Judgment without first ruling on his Motions for Sanctions Against Spoliation and Perjury. Dkt.

86. In the interim period, the Magistrate Judge has denied the Plaintiff's Motions. Dkt. 95.

However, even if the court disagreed with the Magistrate Judge's ruling on the Plaintiff's Motions—which it does not—the court still finds that the Plaintiff has failed to create a genuine issue of material fact. Therefore, summary judgment for the Defendants is appropriate.

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the Memorandum and Recommendation (Dkt. 92) is hereby ADOPTED by the court. Defendants' Motion for Summary Judgment (Dkt. 58) is GRANTED. Plaintiff's Motion for Summary Judgment (Dkt. 74) is DENIED.

Additionally, the court declines to exercise supplemental jurisdiction over the Plaintiff's state law claims. Therefore, those state law claims are DISMISSED without prejudice.

It is so ORDERED.

MEMORANDUM AND RECOMMENDATION

Presently pending before the court are Defendants' Motion for Summary Judgment (Docket Entry No. 58) and Plaintiff's Motion for Summary Judgment (Docket Entry No. 74) and the responses filed thereto. For the reasons set forth below, the court RECOMMENDS that Defendants' summary judgment motion be GRANTED and that Plaintiff's summary judgment motion be DENIED.

I. Case Background

Plaintiff, of Asian-Indian descent and proceeding pro se, filed this action against his former employer, Harris County Public Health & Environmental Services ("HCPHES" or "Harris County"), two supervisors, Dr. Umair Shah ("Dr. Shah") and Dr. Herminia Palacio ("Dr. Palacio"), and a human resources manager, Charles Cunningham ("Cunningham"), claiming race/national origin discrimination in violation of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 ("Title VII")[1] and the Texas Commission on Human Rights Act ("TCHRA"),[2] 2 conspiracy to violate his civil rights in violation of 42 U.S.C. § 1985(3), race discrimination in violation of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 ("Title VI"),[3] violation of his First Amendment right to free speech, violation of his Fourteenth Amendment rights to procedural and substantive due process, violation of his Fourteenth Amendment liberty interest in his reputation and, under state law, breach of contract, tortious interference with employment relations and defamation.[4]

On June 28, 2005, Plaintiff was hired by Defendant Harris County as clinic manager for its Humble Clinic.[5] In that position he supervised approximately fifteen employees, mostly women.[6] Plaintiff was supervised by Binh Nguyen ("Nguyen"), health service area manager.[7] Nguyen reported to Dr. Shah, deputy director of the HCPHES.[8] Dr. Shah reported to Dr. Palacio, executive director of the HCPHES. Plaintiff was terminated from his employment on August 16, 2005, seven weeks after he began work, based on complaints by a number of his subordinates about his condescending attitude and verbal attacks.[9]

According to Plaintiff, the Humble Clinic was in "very poor shape" when he arrived in June 2005.[10] In response, he implemented a time-in/time-out sheet for employees, insisted that supervisors perform annual evaluations of their staff members, attempted to evaluate the length of waiting time for clients, complained that Spanish-speaking employees were frequently called away from their duties to translate for clients, and obtained price quotes for storage units to address space concerns.[11] In addition, Plaintiff began having personnel issues with employees at the clinic.

On July 12, 2005, Plaintiff notified Nguyen via e-mail that he was having a problem with Ginger Trejo ("Trejo"), a nurse practitioner at the clinic.[12] Three days later, Plaintiff sent a second e-mail to Nguyen, documenting additional problems with Trejo and reporting her statements that she was not sure if the job was the right one for her and that she was going to take Friday off to evaluate the situation. Plaintiff concluded that he thought Trejo was "going through some psychological condition which, frankly, concerns me from a patient care point of view."[13] Nguyen responded that Plaintiff could not post her position until Trejo resigned and reminded Plaintiff that any termination must be approved through the proper channels.[14]

On July 18, 2005, Jan Allison ("Allison"), volunteer coordinator for HCPHES human resources department, sent Cunningham a memo detailing a conversation she had had with Plaintiff several days earlier concerning volunteer opportunities for retired nurses.[15] Allison reported that Plaintiff argued with her about established county procedures, questioned the competence of the county attorney, opined that most attorneys were corrupt and incompetent and informed Allison that he had authored two books on medical liability issues.[16] According to Allison, Plaintiff's side of the conversation became so intense that Allison voiced her intent to terminate the meeting.[17] At that point, Plaintiff changed his tone and admitted that it was his plan to "grill [her] in the pros and cons of the issues and procedures for volunteers" because he had an idea to discuss with her.[18] Although Allison stayed to hear Plaintiff's idea, she told him that she did not appreciate his treatment of her during the lengthy discussion and that they could have accomplished more had he acted in a more professional manner.[19]

In mid-July 2005, a lab intern at the Humble Clinic misread a positive pregnancy test as negative and, though the mistake was caught at once, Plaintiff proposed retesting all clients whose pregnancy tests had been performed by the intern. According to Plaintiff, Dr. Shah objected to this and overruled Plaintiff's decision in a telephone call on July 18, 2005. The next day, Plaintiff complained to Nguyen that he objected to Dr. Shah's angry tone and opined that Dr. Shah's decision was inconsistent with Harris County rules and regulations. Plaintiff informed Nguyen that he intended to formally protest Dr. Shah's decision to Dr. Palacio via the county grievance procedure.[20] On that same day,Nguyen

[20] PMSJ, Ex. 15, e-mail from Plaintiff to Nguyen dated July 19, 2005. Plaintiff attached to his summary judgment evidence a copy of a grievance addressed to Palacio dated July 21, 2005. See Ex. 16, grievance dated July 21, 2005. That grievance states, "I would like the opportunity to meet with you to discuss my concerns about gross negligence of patient care at the Humble Clinic. I look forward to

went to the Humble Clinic to discuss clinic management issues with Plaintiff. It was agreed that Plaintiff was to discontinue the sign in/sign out sheets, defer the "wait time trials" until he was more familiar with the internal workings of the clinic, drop his proposal for off-site storage rental, and do additional research before purchasing music equipment for the clinic.[21] Nguyen informed Plaintiff that Dr. Shah would review the staff performance appraisals.[22]

At some time before August 4, 2005, Dr. Shah met with Plaintiff and cautioned him to "take things slowly."[23] Dr. Shah also counseled Plaintiff to be careful about the things he said to subordinates as well as the manner in which he addressed them. On August 4, 2005, Dr. Shah observed Plaintiff "aggressively questioning" Linda Forys ("Forys"), health education director, about her job duties during a meeting. Dr. Shah and Nguyen both found Plaintiff's manner so hostile towards Forys that they intervened.[24] Dr. Shah told Plaintiff that his manner was inappropriate.[25]

Shortly after the Forys incident, Stephani Adams ("Adams") a Humble Clinic employee, filed a formal grievance against Plaintiff.[26] Adams complained that Plaintiff talked down to her and characterized her most recent encounter with hearing from you soon. Thank you." Defendant denied that Plaintiff ever forwarded this form to either Nguyen or Dr. Palacio directly.

Plaintiff as a "hostile verbal assault."[27] Adams reported that Plaintiff instructed her to request a transfer because he could not work with her.[28] Adams also reported that four other female coworkers had approached her to complain about Plaintiff's unprofessional behavior toward them.

On August 10, 2005, Colleen Hodges, public relations coordinator for HCPHES, related to Cunningham that a community outreach program manager sought her assistance to deal with Plaintiff.[29] For years, this manager had run a spay/neuter program periodically in the parking lot of the Humble Clinic. Plaintiff refused to allow the program until he was provided certain information.[30] The manager also complained that Plaintiff was very rude to her. When Hodges called Plaintiff to advise him that this program had been approved for years and was in compliance with all Harris County policies, Plaintiff told her that he did not want to listen and to shut up.[31] He demanded that Hodges provide the information he had requested. While Hodges was working on his request, Plaintiff called and told her that he no longer needed the information.[32] Hodges related to Cunningham that Plaintiff was condescending and immovable in their conversation.[33] She also told Cunningham that she had never known this particular manager, who also complained about Plaintiff's tone, to be anything other than courteous.[34]

On August 15, 2005, Plaintiff sent an e-mail to clinic managers concerning the Gene Greene Immunization Event, an outreach program that offered free immunization to the community.[35] In the e-mail, he stated, in part,"Thankfully, we tortured 125 kids between 9:00 a.m. and 1:00 p.m.," "Gene Greene's Office kindly served sandwiches (but no sand witches) to our staff," and "After appearing in a few funerals, and perhaps, weddings, too, the Congressman showed up just before the end of the show."[36] Plaintiff also copied Nguyen and Dr. Shah with the e-mail. At 5:30 p.m., Dr. Shah sent an e-mail to Nguyen communicating his displeasure with the unprofessional tone and content of Plaintiff's e-mail.[37] Dr. Shah told Nguyen to discuss his comments with Plaintiff and expressed his disappointment that Plaintiff had not taken previous reprimands to heart.[38]

By the next morning, Dr. Shah had changed his mind about simply confronting Plaintiff on his behavior. On August 16, 2005, Dr. Shah informed Nguyen in an e-mail that he had decided to seek Plaintiff's termination. Shah stated,

> I find his remarks about Congressman Green as immature, discourteous and at the same time disingenuous. If this were the only instance of an issue with this employee, then I would be willing to work through the progressive disciplinary route with him. However, this is one of many instances in his short stint here, which has been saddled with a grievance filed against him, numerous complaints from staff, and numerous departures from his clinical staff since his arrival. His display of unprofessionalism has been viewed by both of us directly as well when we saw how he queried another HCPHES division director just two weeks back. Equally, I am concerned about what interactions he is having with staff (?public) that we are not even aware of because they go unreported or otherwise are do [sic] not rise to our attention.

Dr. Shah concluded by stating that Plaintiff's behavior was "not tolerable" and that he should be terminated effective immediately. Informed of the situation by Nguyen, Cunningham concurred that Plaintiff should be terminated for his lack of judgment and insensitivity to employees.[39] Later that morning, Dr.Palacio agreed with Dr. Shah and Cunningham's recommendation to immediately terminate Plaintiff.[40]

On August 17, 2005, Nguyen delivered a letter of termination to Plaintiff at the Humble Clinic.[41] Plaintiff responded that the County had not heard the last of him, that he would file a lawsuit and that he believed that he was terminated because Dr. Shah did not agree with Plaintiff's push to evaluate the nursing staff and to comply with "the law."[42]

On August 25, 2005, Plaintiff sent an e-mail to County Judge Robert Eckels with a copy to Dr. Palacio, complaining that he was fired from his position for raising concerns over patient care and "other unlawful conduct."[43]Plaintiff charged that HCPHES had given "unlimited power" to Dr. Shah,"who is capable of concealing his lunacy under some desirable personality traits."[44] Plaintiff also expressed his hope that by acting quickly, Harris County might minimize the risk posed to numerous patients.[45] Harris County investigated Plaintiff's charges of discrimination and determined that his allegations were unsubstantiated.[46]

II. Summary Judgment Standard

Summary judgment is warranted when the evidence reveals that no genuine dispute exists regarding any material fact and the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c); Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 322 (1986); Brown v. City of Houston, Tex., 337 F.3d 539, 540-41 (5th Cir. 2003). A material fact is a fact that is identified by applicable substantive law as critical to the outcome of the suit. Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 248 (1986); Ameristar Jet Charter, Inc. v. Signal Composites, Inc., 271 F.3d 624, 626 (5th Cir. 2001). To be genuine, the dispute regarding a material fact must be supported by evidence such that a reasonable jury could resolve the issue in favor of either party. Anderson, 477 U.S. at 250; TIG Ins. Co. v. Sedgwick James of Wash., 276 F.3d 754, 759 (5th Cir. 2002).

The movant must inform the court of the basis for the summary judgment motion and must point to relevant excerpts from pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories, admissions, or affidavits that demonstrate the absence of genuine factual issues. Celotex Corp., 477 U.S.

at 323; Topalian v. Ehrman, 954 F.2d 1125, 1131 (5th Cir. 1992). If the moving party can show an absence of record evidence in support of one or more elements of the case for which the nonmoving party bears the burden, the movant will be entitled to summary judgment. Celotex Corp., 477 U.S. at 322. In response to a showing of lack of evidence, the party opposing summary judgment must go beyond the pleadings and proffer evidence that establishes each of the challenged elements of the case, demonstrating that genuine issues of material fact do exist which must be resolved at trial. Id. at 324.

When considering the evidence, "[d]oubts are to be resolved in favor of the nonmoving party, and any reasonable inferences are to be drawn in favor of that party." Evans v. City of Houston, 246 F.3d 344, 348 (5th Cir. 2001); see also Boston Old Colony Ins. Co. v. Tiner Assocs. Inc., 288 F.3d 222, 227 (5th Cir. 2002). The court should not "weigh evidence, assess credibility, or determine the most reasonable inference to be drawn from the evidence." Honore v. Douglas, 833 F.2d 565, 567 (5th Cir. 1987).

However, the nonmoving party must show more than "some metaphysical doubt as to the material facts." Meinecke v. H & R Block of Houston, 66 F.3d 77, 81 (5th Cir. 1995). Conclusory allegations, unsubstantiated assertions, improbable inferences, unsupported speculation, or only a scintilla of evidence will not carry this burden. Brown, 337 F.3d at 541; Ramsey v. Henderson, 286 F.3d 264, 269 (5th Cir. 2002). The court must grant summary judgment if, after an adequate period of discovery, the nonmovant fails "to make a showing sufficient to establish the existence of an element essential to that party's case, and on which that party will bear the burden of proof at trial." Celotex Corp., 477 U.S. at 322.

III. Analysis

a. Title VII and the THCRA

Plaintiff has brought suit against Defendant Harris County[47] for race/national origin discrimination under both Title VII and the TCHRA. Claims of discrimination under the TCHRA are evaluated under the same burden shifting analysis as Title VII claims. Shackelford v. Deloitte & Touche, LLP, 190 F.3d 398, 404 n.2 (5th Cir. 1999); Chevron Corp. v. Redmon, 745 S.W.2d 314, 316 (Tex. 1987).

Title VII prohibits employers from "discriminat[ing] against any individual with respect to his compensation, terms, conditions, or privileges of employment, because of such individual's race, color, religion, sex, or national origin." 42 U.S.C. § 2000e-2(a). In an employment discrimination case, a plaintiff may prove a claim either through direct or circumstantial evidence. Russell v. McKinney Hosp. Venture, 235 F.3d 219, 222 (5th Cir. 2000). In the absence of direct evidence, courts analyze discrimination claims under the burden-shifting approach first articulated in McDonnell Douglas Corp. v. Green, 411 U.S. 792 (1973), and modified in Desert Palace, Inc. v. Costa, 539 U.S. 90 (2003), and Rachid v. Jack In The Box, Inc., 376 F.3d 305 (5th Cir. 2004).

[47] Only Plaintiff's employer, Harris County, can be held liable under Title VII or the TCHRA. See Tex. Lab.Code § 21.002(8) (employer defined); Medina v. Ramsey Steel Co., Inc., 238 F.3d 674, 686 (5th Cir. 2001)(supervisors not considered "employers" under labor code); Huckabay v. Moore, 142 F.3d 233, 241 (5th Cir. 1998)("[O]ur cases make plain that the term employer does not include a hiring or supervisory official in his personal or individual capacity").

Under this "modified McDonnell Douglas approach," a plaintiff must first trigger a presumption of discrimination by establishing a prima facie case. See Rachid, 376 F.3d at 312. Once a plaintiff has established a prima facie case, the burden shifts to the defendant to proffer legitimate, non-discriminatory reasons for its actions. Id. If the defendant satisfies this burden, then the presumption of discrimination dissolves. Reeves v. Sanderson Plumbing Prods., Inc., 530 U.S. 133, 142-43 (2000); Price v. Fed. Express Corp., 283 F.3d 715, 720 (5th Cir. 2002).

The plaintiff must then offer evidence to create an issue of fact "either (1) that the defendant's reason is not true, but is instead a pretext for discrimination (pretext alternative); or (2) that the defendant's reason, while true, is only one of the reasons for its conduct, and another motivating factor is the plaintiff's protected characteristic (mixed-motives alternative)." Rachid, 376 F.3d at 312 (internal quotation and alteration marks omitted). If the plaintiff shows that the illegal discrimination was a motivating factor, the defendant must respond with evidence that the same employment decision would have been made regardless of discriminatory animus. Rachid, 376 F.3d at 312.

The ultimate burden of persuasion remains with the plaintiff. Reeves, 530 U.S. at 143. At the summary judgment stage, the court looks for "a conflict in substantial evidence to create a jury question regarding discrimination." Haynes v. Pennzoil Co., 207 F.3d 296, 300 (5th Cir. 2000). The plaintiff must produce some evidence "demonstrating that discrimination lay at the heart of the employer's decision." Price, 283 F.3d at720.Evidence of the falsity of an employer's stated justification may be enough, in some cases, to raise a fact issue on pretext, but only if a reasonable jury could conclude that the action was discriminatory. Reeves, 530 U.S. at 147-48. "Whether summary judgment is appropriate depends on numerous factors, including 'the strength of the plaintiff's prima facie case, the probative value of the proof that the employer's explanation is false, and any other evidence that supports the employer's case and that properly may be considered.'" Price, 283 F.3d at 720 (quoting Reeves, 530 U.S. at 148-49).

Plaintiff can establish a prima facie case of discrimination by demonstrating that: (1) he was a member of a protected class; (2) he was qualified for the position; (3) he suffered an adverse employment action; and (4) he was treated less favorably than similarly situated employees of a different race or national origin. See Okoye v. Univ. of Tex. Houston Health Sci. Ctr., 245 F.3d 507, 512-13 (5th Cir. 2001). Defendant Harris County contests the fourth prong, arguing that Plaintiff cannot show that he was discharged for conduct for which other, similarly situated employees were not.

In order to raise a fact issue that he was similarly situated with others but treated differently, Plaintiff must show that they engaged in similar conduct. To establish disparate treatment, the plaintiff must show that the employer treated other employees in nearly identical circumstances in a different manner. Oyoke, 245 F.3d at 514; Mayberry v. Vought Aircraft Co., 55 F.3d 1086, 1090 (5th Cir. 1995); Barnes v. Yellow Freight Sys., Inc., 778 F.2d 1096, 1101 (5th Cir. 1986)(holding that a presumption of discriminatory intent is raised for purposes of a disparate treatment claim where "a supervisor of one race treats employees of the same race more favorably than similarly situated employees of another race under circumstances that are essentially identical.").

In support of the similarly situated prong, Plaintiff argues that Harris County had "excessive tolerance for white, black and Hispanic bad behavior"[48] and cites several examples of what he considers disparate treatment.

First, Plaintiff claims that Trejo, a white female, was treated more favorably than he when, in response to Plaintiff's stated desire to terminate Trejo for attendance issues,[49] Cunningham reminded Plaintiff that Harris County had a progressive discipline policy to remedy performance issues.[50] In contrast, Plaintiff argues, he was terminated without resort to progressive discipline.

The Trejo situation does not raise a inference of disparate treatment for several reasons. Plaintiff was the manager of a clinic supervising a number of employees; Trejo was a nurse practitioner and had different responsibilities and job duties. Also, Plaintiff was terminated by Dr. Palacio based on the recommendation of Dr. Shah after numerous complaints surfaced concerning Plaintiff's unprofessional and condescending treatment of subordinate employees and others who interfaced with him as manager of the Humble Clinic. In contrast, Trejo's alleged work performance issues related to attendance. The court concludes that this incident does not raise a prima facie case of disparate treatment because Plaintiff and Trejo were not in nearly identical circumstances.

Plaintiff's other examples of disparate treatment also fail to raise nearly identical fact situations. For example, Plaintiff claims that Defendant Harris County was slow in disciplining an African-American male for sexual harassment and only terminated him when a complainant threatened to [49] According to Plaintiff, Trejo arrived to work late when she had patients waiting, left early when she had patients waiting, refused to attend mandatory training sessions, complained that she did not have a window office and cheated on her time sheet. See Plaintiff's Amended Complaint, Docket Entry No. 6, p. 13.

[50] PMSJ,Ex. 32, e-mail to Plaintiff from Cunningham dated July 15, 2005.

sue.[51] Presumably, Plaintiff views this as evidence of disparate treatment because Plaintiff was fired after only seven weeks on the job. There is no similarity between Plaintiff and this individual.

Next, Plaintiff complains that when he recommended that a Hispanic female lab technician be terminated for excessive tardiness and unauthorized absenteeism, Dr. Shah rejected that recommendation and falsely claimed that the lab technician already had resigned. This incident does not present nearly identical circumstances as required by Fifth Circuit case law.

Plaintiff complains that Dr. Shah chose to believe the allegations of Adams' grievance and fired Plaintiff before he could respond to the merits of her complaints as allowed by the Defendant's grievance procedure. Even if true, this incident does not raise a fact issue of disparate treatment in Harris County's decision to terminate Plaintiff for several instances of unprofessional conduct.

Plaintiff complains that, in 2007, two white clinic managers received written counseling for disciplinary issues when, in contrast, he was terminated.[52] In both cases cited by Plaintiff, the letters of reprimand were signed by Valeria Brannon, chief of the clinical health and prevention services department.[53] In one case, Brannon took a manager to task for providing information to another HCPHES employee that gave the false impression that Brannon was acting negligently.[54] In the other case, Brannon counseled the manager that his response to an employee who told him, "I quit," was inappropriate and unauthorized by policy.[55] The manager was reminded of the county's progressive discipline policy and the need to document all employment matters.[56] The court finds that these two managers are not similarly situated with Plaintiff as they were disciplined two years after Plaintiff was terminated, by a different supervisor for actions that were not comparable to those of Plaintiff.

[51] See Plaintiff's Amended Complaint, Docket Entry No. 6, p.14-15.

Plaintiff's other complaints are that:(1) two other managers, one white and one black, also opposed the transfer of Adams to the HCPHES main office but were not criticized by Dr. Shah;[57] (2) another Asian supervisor, Nguyen, was treated "shabbily and routinely humiliated" by Dr. Shah when Dr. Shah took away Nguyen's "young and beautiful Secretary;"58 Dr. Shah was hostile to people of his own kind and harassed an Asian female who later quit her job;[59]

[53] PMSJ, Ex. 40, interoffice memorandum dated May 17, 2007, and memorandum of understanding dated May 23, 2007, both from Valeria Brannon. It is unclear from the record if Brannon held the same position as Nguyen did in 2005 when he was Plaintiff's immediate supervisor. Dr. Shah received copies of both letters.

(4) Dr. Shah became angry when he learned that Plaintiff had made grammatical edits to a strategic plan that was sent to Plaintiff in error;[60] and (5) an Asian female of Filipino origin filed a complaint of discrimination against HCPHES. None of these raise an inference of disparate treatment because they are so factually different from the conduct for which Plaintiff was terminated.[61]

As Plaintiff has failed to allege a prima facie case of discrimination with respect to his termination, the court RECOMMENDS that Defendants' motion for summary judgment be GRANTED and that Plaintiff's motion for summary Judgment be DENIED on Plaintiff's Title VII and TCHRA claims.

Here, Plaintiff complains that Defendant Harris County violated Title VI by "disparately treating Plaintiff during his employment and unlawfully terminating his employment on the basis of his race."[62] In support of his Title VI claim, Plaintiff incorporated by reference his factual allegations supporting his Title VII claim, adding that part of his salary was paid by federal funds.[63]

[61] Id. at p. 31.
[62] Plaintiff's Amended Complaint, Docket Entry No. 6, pp. 31-32.
[63] Id. at ¶¶ 172, 173.

To prevail under Title VI on a claim for monetary relief, a private litigant must prove: 1) that the defendant engaged in intentional discrimination based on race, color, or national origin; and 2) the defendant received federal financial assistance.[64] 42 U.S.C. § 2000d; see also Guardians Ass'n v. Civ. Serv. Comm'n of New York City, 463 U.S. 582 (1983); Alexander v. Sandoval, 532 U.S. 275, 280 (2001). Intentional discrimination encompasses practices by which the actor intended to treat similarly situated persons differently solely on the basis of national origin or race. Canutillo Ind. Sch. Dist. v. Leija, 101 F.3d 393, 397 (5th Cir. 1996).

Defendants moved for summary judgment on this claim on the basis that none of Plaintiff's salary was reimbursed by federal funds. In support, Defendants attached the affidavit of Henry Pastor, who averred that Plaintiff's salary was paid by the State of Texas through Regional Grant ECF2759A.[65] Plaintiff failed to contest Defendants' summary judgment evidence in any responsive pleading or discuss this claim in his motion for summary judgment. Accordingly, it appears that Plaintiff has abandoned his Title VI claim. Even if [64] The text of the statute reads: "No person in the United States shall, on the ground of race, color, or national origin, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance." 42 U.S.C. § 2000d.

[65] DMSJ, Ex. T, Affidavit of Henry Pastor, p. 2.

Plaintiff has not abandoned this claim, in light of the court's recommended finding with respect to his Title VII claim that Plaintiff failed to adequately allege intentional discrimination, that is, a similarly situated non-Asian individual who was treated more favorably based on his race or national origin, his Title VI claim must also fail. It is RECOMMENDED that Defendants' motion for summary judgment be GRANTED on Plaintiff's Title VI claim.

Section 1985(3) provides in pertinent part:

> If two or more persons in any State . . . conspire . . . for the purpose of depriving, either directly or indirectly, any person or class of persons of the equal protection of the laws, or of equal privileges and immunities under the laws. . . the party so injured or deprived may have an action for the recovery of damages occasioned by such injury or deprivation, against any one or more of the conspirators.

In bringing a claim under Section 1985(3), a plaintiff must allege: (1) a conspiracy; (2) for the purpose of depriving, either directly or indirectly, any person or class of persons of the equal protection of the laws, or of equal privileges and immunities under the laws; (3) an act in furtherance of the conspiracy; and (4) an injury to his person or property or a deprivation of any right or privilege of a citizen of the United States. Griffin v. Breckenridge, 403 U.S. 88, 103 (1971).

In the present case, Plaintiff alleges that the object of the conspiracy was to terminate his employment because of his national origin or race, thereby depriving him of his rights to the equal protection of the laws.[66]66 In essence, Plaintiff has restated his Title VII claim as a conspiracy to terminate his employment because of his national origin or race. However, this theory of recovery is precluded by Great Am. Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Novotny, 442 U.S. 366, 378 (1979). There, the Supreme Court found that "[Section] 1985(3) may not be invoked to redress violations of Title VII." Id. As Plaintiff has not stated a Section 1985(3) claim factually distinct from his Title VII claim, it is RECOMMENDED that Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment be GRANTED and Plaintiff's Motion for Summary Judgment be DENIED on this cause of action.

Section 1983 provides a civil remedy for violations, under color of state law, of a person's constitutionally recognized rights, privileges, or immunities. Bledsoe v. City of Horn Lake, Mississippi, 449 F.3d 650, 653 (5th Cir. 2006). Plaintiff alleges that he was terminated in violation of the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment and that his termination violated a liberty interest in his reputation also protected by the Fourteenth Amendment. In addition, he claims that his termination was in retaliation for his exercise of his First Amendment rights.

---

A plaintiff can establish a prima facie case under Section 1983[67] by alleging: 1) a violation of a federal constitutional or statutory right; and 2) that the violation was committed by an individual acting under the color of state law. Doe v. Rains County Indep. Sch. Dist., 66 F.3d 1402, 1406 (5th Cir. 1995). The statute creates no substantive right, but only provides remedies for deprivations of rights created under federal law. Graham v. Connor, 490 U.S. 386, 393-94 (1989).

1. Property Interest

In the present case, Plaintiff alleges that he had a property interest in his continued employment and that Defendant violated the Fourteenth Amendment when it discharged him without due process of law.[68] The threshold question under a Section 1983 due process claim is whether [67] The provision reads, in relevant part: Every person who, under color of any statute, ordinance, regulation, custom, or usage, of any State . . . , subjects, or causes to be subjected, any citizen of the United States or other person within the jurisdiction thereof to the deprivation of any rights, privileges, or immunities secured by the Constitution and laws, shall be liable to the party injured in an action at law, suit in equity, or other proper proceeding for redress. 42 U.S.C. § 1983.

[68] PMSJ, p. 44.

the complainant has been deprived of a cognizable property interest in his employment. Bolton v. City of Dallas, Texas, 472 F.3d 261 (5th Cir. 2006). The Fifth Circuit has held that such property right must be established by state law. Hudson v. Texas Racing Comm'n, 455 F.3d 597, 599 (5th Cir. 2006).

A property interest in continued employment is not generally a characteristic of public employment and must be based on an independent source, such as a contract, a state law or a city ordinance. Perry v. Sindermann, 408 U.S. 593, 601 (1972); Bishop v. Wood, 426 U.S. 341, 344 (1976).

The personnel regulations of Harris County clearly state that county employees have "no employment tenure," that "employment is at-will," and that either the County or the employee is "free to terminate employment with or without notice at any time for any reason."[69] As an at-will employee, Plaintiff had no property interest in his continued employment and therefore had no procedural or substantive due process protection attached to his termination.

Ignoring the personnel regulations, Plaintiff claims that he had a property interest in his continued employment based on the Texas Government Code, Chapter 160, "Grievance Procedure for County Employees," which requires Texas counties to promulgate employee grievance procedures. Plaintiff argues that Defendant Harris County violated Texas

Government Code § 160.005[70] when it terminated his employment before his written response was due on the grievance Adams filed against him. Plaintiff also claims that his termination was in retaliation for a grievance he filed, thus violating the anti-reprisal section of the same chapter.[71]

Plaintiff's property interest argument is misplaced. The Texas Government Code sections cited by Plaintiff do not create a right of continued employment necessary to establish a property interest, rather, they merely require a county to

[70] Section 160.005 of the Texas Government Code provides:
(a) The commissioners court of the county shall enact orders to provide for:
(1) filing of written grievances;
(2) written responses to the grievance allegations;
(3) procedures for appeal to an appointed county grievance resolutions committee;
(4) further appeal to the commissioners court;
(5) presentation of grievances by an employee's requested representative;
(6) reasonable leave with pay for the presentation of grievances; and
(7) other necessary procedures to permit effective implementation of this chapter.

(b) The orders and procedures shall apply equally to all employees of the county, including employees of independent elected officials, and shall provide for reasonable timetables for filing and responding to grievances.

[71] Section 160.006(a) of the Texas Government Code provides in part:
An employee may not be subject to retaliation, reprisal, or discrimination on account of having exercised any right or participated in any procedure established by this chapter. A supervisor or management official may not be subject to retaliation, reprisal or discrimination because of any grievance adjustment offered under this chapter to an employee with a grievance or because of testifying on any employee's behalf during a grievance procedure under this chapter.

have a procedure by which an employee may complain about disputes that arise during employment with the county and protect an employee from reprisal if he exercises his ability to complain. Those Government Code sections do not create an expectation of continued employment or require that a county show just cause for dismissal of an employee.[72]72 Even if Plaintiff is correct that Defendant Harris County violated either Section 160.005 or Section 160.006 of the Texas Government Code, such a state law violation is not redressable via Section 1983.

It is therefore RECOMMENDED that Defendants' Motion for Summary Judgment be GRANTED and that Plaintiff's Motion for Summary Judgment be DENIED on Plaintiff's due process claim.

2. Liberty Interest

Plaintiff has alleged that Defendant Harris County violated a constitutionally protected liberty interest when it terminated him for a lack of professionalism and insensitivity in his dealings with other HCPHES personnel.[73] Generally, damage to reputation attendant to a termination from [72] See Gilbert v. Homar, 520 U.S. 924, 928-29 (1997) (stating that "employees who can be discharged only for cause have a constitutionally protected property interest in their tenure and cannot be fired without due process.") Plaintiff fails to point the court to any language that required the county to possess just cause for his termination. 73 DMSJ, Ex. A, letter to Plaintiff dated August 16, 2005.

[73] DMSJ, Ex. A, letter to Plaintiff dated August 16, 2005.

employment does not rise to the level of a constitutional injury. Paul v. Davis, 424 U.S. 693, 701 (1976). "A constitutionally protected liberty interest is implicated only if an employee is discharged in a manner that created a false and defamatory impression about him and thus stigmatizes him and forecloses him from other employment opportunities." Perez v. Hous. Auth. of the City of Uvalde, 95 Fed. App'x 51, 4 (5th Cir. 2004), quoting White v. Thomas, 660 F.2d 680, 684 (5th Cir. 1981).

In order to prevail on this claim, Plaintiff must prove: (1) he was discharged;(2) stigmatizing charges were made against him in connection to the discharge; (3) such charges were false; (4) he was not given notice or an opportunity to be heard prior to the discharge; (5) the charges were made public; (6) he requested a hearing to clear his name; and (7) the employer refused the request for a hearing. Hughes v. City of Garland, 204 F.3d 223, 226 (5th Cir. 2000).

In the present case, Plaintiff has failed to bring forward evidence that the charges were made public. The summary judgment evidence established that Plaintiff's supervisor delivered the letter of termination directly to Plaintiff in private and that Plaintiff left the Humble Clinic shortly thereafter.[74] There is no evidence that the letter of termination or the reasons for the termination were made public.[75] Without evidence that stigmatizing charges were made public, Plaintiff's liberty interest claim fails. See Moore v. Mississippi Valley State Univ., 871 F.2d 545, 549 (5th Cir. 1989).

In addition, the reasons given for Plaintiff's termination do not rise to the level of stigmatizing, which requires more than mere proof that a termination might make a plaintiff less desirable to prospective employers. Wells v. Hico Indep. Sch. Dist., 736 F.2d 243, 256 (5th Cir. 1984). In Wells, the court stated that "for a charge to be stigmatizing it must be worse than merely adverse; it must be such as would give rise to 'a badge of infamy,' public scorn or the like." Wells, 736 F.2d at 256 n. 16 (citations and internal quotations omitted).

The letter of termination addressed to Plaintiff stated:

> This letter is to inform you that you are hereby terminated from the Humble Community Health Center Manager position with HCPHES effective immediately. You have displayed a lack of professionalism and courtesy in your emails as well as in direct interactions with your immediate staff and other HCPHES personnel. Your manner has been [75] At his deposition, Plaintiff admitted that he had no information suggesting that Harris County contacted any prospective employer or that any prospective employer contacted Harris County about the reason for his termination. DMSJ, Ex. M, Plaintiff's Deposition, p. 221.

> insensitive, discourteous and, at the same time disingenuous. In your short stint at the Humble Health Center, there has been a grievance filed against you and numerous complaints from HCPHES staff about the manner in which you dealt with them. Your peers and your supervisors have all been dismayed at the display of unprofessionalism that you have exhibited. Please contact Human Resources office if you have any questions about your final check or benefits.

This letter, which did no more than accuse Plaintiff of a lack of courtesy and professionalism, did not create a defamatory impression of him or subject him to public scorn. As such, even if published, the letter does not raise a fact issue that it would have foreclosed Plaintiff from other employment opportunities.

Alternatively, a plaintiff's failure to request a name clearing hearing defeats a liberty interest claim. Bledsoe, 449F.3d at 653.[76]

In light of Plaintiff's lack of evidence that the letter was published, or stigmatizing, or that he requested and was denied a name-clearing hearing, it is RECOMMENDED that Defendants' Motion for Summary Judgment be GRANTED

---

[76] In fact, following his termination, Plaintiff requested to appear before Commissioner's Court. That request was granted, but Plaintiff failed to appear. DMSJ, Ex. H, Affidavit of Hermina Palacio, p. 3; Ex. I, Affidavit of Charlie Cunningham, p. 2. Clearly, Plaintiff was aware of this opportunity to demand a name-clearing hearing but failed to take advantage of it.

and that Plaintiff's Motion for Summary Judgment be DENIED on Plaintiff's liberty interest claim.

3. First Amendment

Plaintiff claims that he was terminated in retaliation for exercise of his First Amendment rights after complaining of certain conditions at the Humble Clinic. In order to prevail on a First Amendment retaliation claim, Plaintiff must prove: (1) he suffered an adverse employment action; (2) his speech involved a matter of public concern; (3) his interest in commenting on matters of public concern outweighed the defendant's interest in promoting efficiency and (4) the speech motivated the defendant's actions. Kennedy v. Tangipahoa Parish Library Bd. of Control, 224 F.3d 359, 366 (5th Cir. 2000) citing Teague v. City of Flower Mound, Texas, 179 F.3d 377, 380 (5th Cir. 1999). Recently, in Garcetti v. Ceballos, ___ U.S. ___, 126 S.Ct. 1951, 1960 (2006), the Supreme Court held that "when public employees make statements pursuant to their official duties, the employees are not speaking as citizens for First Amendment purposes, and the Constitution does not insulate their communications from employer discipline."

Defendants argue that Plaintiff's speech was made in the context of his official duties and is therefore not actionable under the First Amendment. The court agrees. Here, Plaintiff identifies as protected speech his proposed management reforms for the clinic that were rejected by Nguyen and Dr. Shah. The reforms included Plaintiff's attempt to institute a sign-in/sign-out sheet for employees and his proposal to have "time trials" at the clinic to decrease waiting time.[77] Plaintiff also proposed moving certain records into a leased storage facility and purchasing a music system for the clinic waiting room.[78] When Plaintiff's supervisor reviewed these proposals and required Plaintiff to discontinue them, at least temporarily, Plaintiff claims he filed a grievance with Dr. Palacio, complaining that by not implementing the proposals, patient care would suffer. Plaintiff claims that this is his protected speech.

At his deposition, Plaintiff admitted that these proposed reforms were part of his official employment duties and that his criticism of HCPHES supervisors arose out of his employment as a clinic manager.[79]

There being no contested issue of fact concerning the content or the context of Plaintiff's statements, the court concludes that Plaintiff's speech is not protected by the First Amendment as a matter of law.[80] Accordingly, it is [78] Plaintiff mandated that performance appraisals be completed on clinic staff;this reform was accomplished. Presumably then, this item was not included in Plaintiff's grievance.

[79] DMSJ, Ex. M, Plaintiff's Deposition, pp. 219-21.

[80] Plaintiff's testimony also negated the fourth prong of the Kennedy test, that is, evidence of a causal connection between the speech and the retaliatory act. At his deposition, Plaintiff related that he sent his grievance addressed to Dr. Palacio to Nguyen, but Nguyen never acknowledged receiving it. Plaintiff stated that he believed it probable

RECOMMENDED that Defendants' Motion for Summary Judgment be GRANTED and that Plaintiff's Motion for Summary Judgment on this claim be DENIED on Plaintiff's First Amendment Claim.

e. State Law Claims

Because the court recommends dismissal of Plaintiff's federal claims against Defendants, the court also recommends that it decline to exercise supplemental jurisdiction over Plaintiff's remaining state law claims for breach of contract, defamation and tortious interference with employment relations. See 28 U.S.C. § 1367(c)(3); Moore v. Willis Indep. Sch. Dist., 233 F.3d 871, 876 (5th Cir. 2000).

IV. Conclusion

Based on the foregoing, the court RECOMMENDS that Defendant's motion for summary judgment be GRANTED and the Plaintiff's Motion for Summary Judgment be DENIED on Plaintiff's federal causes of action. It is further RECOMMENDED that the court decline to exercise supplemental jurisdiction over Plaintiff's state law claims.

that neither Nguyen nor Dr. Palacio received his grievance and speculated that it was diverted by one of Dr. Shah's spies. See Defendants' Response to Plaintiff's Reply, Docket Entry No. 79, Ex. Y, Plaintiff's Deposition, p. 155. Without proof that a deciding official was aware of the speech, Plaintiff's claim for retaliation in violation of his First Amendment rights fails on this alternative ground.
